Strictly Manhattan

Stolen

So who's got the Vermeer? And the Rembrandts? And the other paintings stolen from Boston's Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum on St. Patrick's Day, 1990, when thieves disguised as cops talked their way past guards, overpowered them and walked away with 13 paintings? "Stolen," Rebecca Dreyfus' documentary about the unsolved art heist, keeps us tantalized. At its center is the compelling Harold Smith, an art recoverer who fills the film with style and savvy.
